TRUE/FALSE

- 21. T F A father should focus not on getting his children to do the right things but rather to love God and others from the heart. Pg 23
- 22. T F When our children love God with all their heart, soul, mind, and strength, the right behavior will follow. Pg 23
- 23. T F With enough promise of reward or threat of punishment, most children can exercise the self-control they need to perform for a restricted period of time. Pg 30
- 24. T F Foolish behavior flows out of foolish relief. Pg 36
- 25. T F The only way to deal with folly is to go beyond external performance and to father the heart. Pg 36
- 26. T F Our children truly represent God's greatest achievement, the full expression of his creative genius! Pg 42
- 27. T F A lot of fathers think that, in order to parent successfully, they have to become their kids best friend. Pg 63
- 28. T F Our children need the affirmation of knowing they have both unconditional love and structure. Pg 64
- 29. T F If we don't give our children both love and structure, we can become a disconnected, authoritarian, or permissive father. Pg 65
- 30. T F God does not want to take your children out of the world, he wants to take the world out of your children. Pg 90
- 31. T F The most important thing we can do for our children is to help them develop a heart for God. Pg 137
- 32. T F The first step to fathering our children's hearts is to surrender our own hearts to Christ. Pg 137
- 33. T F Without clear boundaries, our children cannot develop their full potential. Pg 142
- 34. T F Sometimes disciplining children becomes more about us than about our children. Pg 142
- 35. T F Sex represents the lowest form of physical intimacy between two people. Pg 165

LISTING

The author mentioned that you might summarize the Christian story for your kids by tutoring them around five key concepts. These five ideas will go a long way toward explaining what your children will experience in their lives. What are they? Pg 125
